SUPREME ALLIED WAR COUNCIL IS CONFIDENT OF ULTIMATE SUCCESS

ALLIED ARMIES DISPLAY STEADFAST COURAGE

Are Resolute In the Determination Not To Sacrifice a Single One
Of the Free Nations Of the World To the Despotism
Rule of Kaiserism

The supreme war council, which has had under advisement the entire war situation, has expressed in its official statement made public, full confidence in the outcome of the war with the aid of the American forces. Complete confidence in General Foch is also expressed, and thanks are extended to President Wilson for his co-operation in the the United States can bring its full American troops.

"The supreme war council held its sixth session under circumstances of great gravity for the alliance of free peoples," says the statement. "The German government, relieved of all pressure on the eastern front by the collapse of the Russian armies and people, has concentrated all its effort in the west. It is now seeking to gain a decision in Europe by a series of desperate and costly assaults upon the allied armies before the United States can bring its full strength effectively to bear."

"The advantage it possesses in its strategic position and superior railway facilities has enabled the enemy command to gain some initial success. It will undoubtedly renew its attacks, and the allied nations may be still exposed to critical days. After a review of the whole position, the supreme war council is convinced that the allies, bearing the trials of the forthcoming campaign with the same fortitude and success, it will undoubtedly repulse its attacks, and the allied nations may be still exposed to critical days. After a review of the whole position, the supreme war council is convinced that the allies, bearing the trials of the forthcoming campaign with the same fortitude and success, it will undoubtedly repulse its attacks, and the allied nations may be still exposed to critical days."

"Thanks to the prompt and cordial co-operation of the president of the United States, the arrangements which were set on foot more than two months ago for the transportation and brigading of American troops will make it impossible for the enemy to gain victory by wearing out the allied reserve before he has exhausted his own strength."

"The supreme war council is confident of the ultimate result, and the allied peoples are resolute not to sacrifice a single one of their American troops to the despotism of Berlin. Their armies are displaying the same steadfast courage which has enabled them on many previous occasions to defeat a German onset. They have only to endure with faith and patience to the end to make victory for freedom secure."

"The free peoples and their magnificent soldiers will save civilization."

Studying Canadian Lumbering Methods

Prominent Official of India Assigned to Investigate Methods in America

F. S. Leete, a prominent official in the forestry service of India, who has been assigned by the Indian government to investigate logging methods in America, has arrived in Vancouver and will visit scenes of logging operations in British Columbia before proceeding to the United States. Mr. Leete has been 26 years in the department of woods and forests of the Indian government, and has spent his whole time in the forests of India and Burma. His official position is that of "conservator of forests," a position similar to that of chief forester in the Canadian forestry service.

Forest areas amounting to approximately 250,000 square miles of timber cover about one-fifth of India, which is about one-third the size of the United States, he said. Every type of timber to be found on the American continent is included in Indian forests, but in India hardwood was the principal timber, while in America softwoods predominated largely. India was not trying to develop outside markets, but was merely concerned in supplying the needs of her own markets for lumber.

One of the objects of Mr. Leete's visit is to study the methods of handling logs, there being a proposal in India to displace elephants and adopt mechanical power.

The German Way Ruse of a Burgomaster to Confiscate Finery of German Girls

Promised a dance, all the girls of Thirngshausen were up bright and early on Sunday, dressing themselves in their best and producing from sundry cunning hidden places fine raiment of all descriptions. The girls, all smiles and dainty face and silk, trooped to the hall, where for two hours they vainly awaited partners and musicians. At length the burgomaster appeared, having closed the doors behind him, mustered the festively garbed girls, each of whom was ordered to sign her name on a sheet of official paper. The burgomaster then announced that the dance would not take place. Sadly disappointed, the fair ones departed, and the following day the burgomaster sent a number of policemen on a visit to the houses of all the would-be dancers, and despite their tearful protestations, the whole of their finery was seized, and confiscated. The invitation to the dance had been merely an official ruse to secure the forbidden garments.

Zeebrugge Harbor Practically Closed

Large Dredger Has Been Identified Inside the Breakwater

The plight of the Germans at the Belgian submarine base of Zeebrugge in consequence of the measures taken by the British navy to blockade the port is even more serious than has been believed heretofore. Photographs taken from air planes show that the entrance of the harbor is rapidly silting up and that, accordingly, the British effort to close the channel is being reinforced by nature.

The sunken vessel inside the breakwater, which was at first believed to be an enemy destroyer now appears to be a large dredge. The loss of this ship evidently has crippled the Germans in their attempts to clear the channel.

Idols as Kindling Wood

One could hardly imagine a more revolutionary proceeding in the life of a home than to chop up the household gods and build fires with them. Yet this is what is happening in some places today under the influence of Christian teaching. Some time ago a progressive citizen of a town in Central China told his neighbors that he was about to worship the idols in the Buddhist temple. After a number of other were convinced that he was right, they took common action and transformed the temple into a workshop and the idols into stove wood. Even an American missionary took part in the feast in which the meat was cooked over burning idols.

Gathering Up the Scraps of War

Often Enough Work Has to Be Carried on Under a Terrific Bombardment

Upon the terrible fields of war, there is nothing, aside from the waste of human life, that produces a more painful impression on the occasional person who is allowed to wander over a battlefield just after a dead battle, having unfulfilled its purpose and having served no end. But it is not now all lost, as it was up to a few months ago.

Hardly half an hour passed forward in an attack than a second army, usually of aged territorials, follows it on to the battlefield and begins to dig. Sometimes their companions call them the "rag pickers of the army" and sometimes the "divers for spoils." In the present, official organization of the armies they rank as a very important corps.

Their work too is often dangerous as that of troops who dash to the assault, as not only have they to handle abandoned explosives of the most perilous kind to touch, but often enough their work has to be carried on under a terrific bombardment.

But they do it as heroically, as stoically and as methodically as do their brother territorials who carry the hot soup up to the fighting line first, shrapnel and high explosives.

First there are the unused shells which the batteries and trench mortars had to abandon as they dashed forward. Sometimes they lie in piles of half a dozen or more and sometimes scattered singly about.

But every one is exceedingly valuable for the method of which it is made, for the high explosives it contains, for the skill and genius that has gone into the construction of its highly perfected fuse and mechanism. Less delicately made trench bombs and aerial torpedoes are likewise gathered up.

Most dangerous are the unexploded German shells which lie scattered about. They may explode at the first human touch, but nevertheless they must be gathered up both for the removal of such a menace and for the value of the material they contain.

Then come the hand grenades. These may have been abandoned, or dropped by the "poilu" as he dashed forward to the assault. Or again they may be unexploded ones either allied or German, which may still go off at the first touch. But they must be gathered up.

In another pile are heaped up in steel helmets gathered from the field. They again may have fallen from the hands of a soldier in the heat of a charge or may have fallen to the ground as the wearer himself fell pierced with a bullet.

Even such trifles as themselves are riddled with bullets and shell splintered the steel they contain is still too valuable to leave behind.

On every side the trail of thousands of thousands of rifle cartridges, both exploded and unexploded, lie scattered about. These must be gathered up one a time, often under a heavy artillery fire.

Then there are the bayonets or rifles that the soldier may have been forced to abandon or that fell from his nerveless hands as his life ebbed away. But no matter how they came to be there they must be saved.

After this come the knapsacks, the canteens, the straps, the old shoes, the caps, the coats, the overcoats, the thousand and one different things that lie in the trail of thousands of men who have dashed forward in a welter where no attention can be paid to anything except to attain the object assigned and still live if possible.

HEAVY SACRIFICES MADE FOR A GREAT PURPOSE AND HIGH IDEAL

HAMMER BLOWS THAT STRENGTHEN GOOD METAL

Premier Lloyd George Points Out That If, For Any Cause, the Allies Fail To Succeed, This Will Be a Sorry World To Live
In, Under Domination Of the Hun

Premier David Lloyd George, in replying to a toast to the success of the entente allied arms at the dinner of the Printers' Society of London, said that the British have made unsurpassed sacrifices for a great purpose and a high ideal.

One of the most encouraging things, the premier continued, was the "superb valor and the trained skill with which the Americans have taken their part in the struggle and defeated the foe. It is a most encouraging thing, because there has been a great flow of these troops and we were depending on them."

"If, for any cause the allies fail to succeed, it will be a sorry world to live in," Mr. Lloyd George said.

"It is impossible to exaggerate the importance or the significance of the issue which is now being confronted today," he declared. "The fate of the world, the destinies of men and the lives of generations would be fashioned by the failure or triumph of our cause."

"If the Prussians should succeed today, they would bring back civilization to an American general early in the past. We are paying a big price, a sad price, for victory, but the sum total of human wretchedness which has been paid will not equal in value that which we are defending. We are passing through anxious days and the crisis is not yet passed, but with stout hearts, we shall win through and then we to the plague. In the interest of civilization, in the interest of the human race, it must be stamped out. You cannot allow it to come again to darken the lives of millions and desolate millions of homes."

In his reference to the Americans, the premier said:

"I have just returned from France where I met a French statesman, who had been at the battlefield soon after an engagement where the Americans fought. He was full of admiration, not merely for their superb valor, but for the trained skill with which they attacked and defeated the foe."

"His report of the conduct of the American troops, a division which had been in action for the first time, was one of the most encouraging things that I have heard of. We know that whenever they appear in the battle line, they will fight in a way worthy of the great traditions of their great country. This is in itself a source of support, sustenance, and encouragement to all those, who with anxious hearts are watching the conflict going on in France."

In conclusion Premier Lloyd George said:

"We have faced a great crisis. We have heard von Ludendorff's threat of hammer blows. Hammer blows would crush poor metal, but they would harden and consolidate good metal. There is good metal in British hearts and it has stood the test of centuries. It will stand this, so will that gallant people across the channel, who are fighting for the honor of their native land."

"I never saw a sign of wavering in any French face. They are full of courage and determination, and it is a United France more than ever. "Unity and resolution are two qualities we need. We have sunk our political difference. We have bigger things to think about. These differences will come again, but for the moment we have one purpose. "Let us be one people, one in aim, one in courage and the resolve never to give in. Let Britain stand like a great breakwater against this current, and God willing, we will break its force."

Long Range Guns

Shown to U. S. General Early in 914 by Bertha Krupp When Visiting Essen

The Daily Chronicle's Paris correspondent says that the long range cannon with which the Germans are bombarding Paris, were invented several years ago. A model was shown to an American general early in 1914, by Frau Bertha Krupp von Bohnenudbach (principal owner of the Krupp works, Hersel). "The gun," says the report, "was shown to the American when he visited Essen on an official mission. He had been taken all through the vast Krupp works escorted by swarms of technical experts and was about to retire when Frau Bertha dismissed all the party except two confidential members of the firm, and with the latter conducted the general to a secret room."

There the visitor's attention was attracted by two immense cannon with extremely long tubes and of relatively small diameter. Frau Bertha spoke in excellent English. "These are the guns you ought to order for the Panama Canal defence. They carry ninety miles, are guaranteed to cost $250,000 each. Of course, these are only trial guns, and they cannot fire more than 20 to 25 shells without being repaired. But you will appreciate the extraordinary results which will be obtained by the nation that first employs such guns."

Were on the Road

A priest in a West Tipperary village sent a pair of boots to the cobbler for repairs, but Bill, who had been limping rather freely, felt no inclination for work, so the boots were not touched that day. Next morning his coat was rather shabby and he looked for a hair of the dog that bit him. His boots were rather dirty, so he thought there was no harm in putting on the priest's, which he accordingly did and turned off into the village pub for a big "reviver." He had not gone very far when whom did he meet but the priest, who said, "I sent my boots for repairs, William; are you not finished with them, yet?" "No, your reverence," answered Bill calmly, "they're not mended yet, but they're on the road."

A Fight for Life

It has been fight or die for many of us in the past and the lucky people are those who have suffered, but who are now well because they heeded nature's warning signal in time to correct their trouble with that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called "An-uric." You should promptly heed these warnings, some of which are dizzy spells, headache, irregularity of the urine or the painful twinges of rheumatism, sciatica or lumbago. To delay may make possible the dangerous forms of kidney disease, such as diabetes or stone in bladder.

To overcome these distressing conditions take plenty of exercise in the open air, avoid a heavy meat diet, drink freely of water and at each meal take An-uric (double strength). You will, in a short time, find that you are one of the firm supporters of An-uric.

"Hamilton, Ont.—For kidney ailments I have never known any medicine to equal An-uric. When I started to take it, I was very miserable with lame back pains in the cords of my neck and shoulders and all over my body. The water was high colored and often gave me a headache. All of these conditions left me after one week's use of An-uric and I consider it to be the greatest of all kidney medicines."—Mrs. JENNIE CLARK, 79 Queen St. So., Toronto, Ont.—"My husband suffered severely with pains in his back for three or four weeks. He commenced to take An-uric and in three or four days he not only looked better, but remarked that his back felt much better, and now he says that his pain has all gone. It is with pleasure that we recommend An-uric."—Mrs. MARY EVANS, 64 Boston St.

FRIDAY, JULY the 12th, 1918

Note and Comment

On Monday, July 15th, this country will be on war rations, so far as the use of white flour is concerned. On and after that date no more bread can be made wholly from white wheat flour, and this order includes bread made by bakers, confectioners and housekeepers whether made for sale or for private consumption. The new order makes it compulsory for everyone to use one pound of substitute for every 4 pounds of standard war flour used in the making of bread and the two ingredients must be used in this proportion. When buying war flour each purchaser must also buy some substitute at the rate of one pound to every four of war flour, and merchants will not be allowed to sell white flour without selling one-fourth as much of some substitute.

Oatmeal, cornmeal, rye barley and oat flour, and potato flour are such substitutes, but, with the exception of oatmeal, they are not very plentiful in this country.

The Dept. of Agriculture of Alberta is undertaking a campaign to relieve the serious shortage of feed for stock in the various parts of the province. The department will endeavor to secure land for pasture or for hay cutting.

If an owner of livestock is prepared to arrange for the cutting and stacking of hay the dept. will endeavor to locate him land, if he wishes to move livestock, pasture land will be located and, if he wishes to dispose of any stock they will endeavor to put him in touch with buyers. In such a manner as to conserve all useful breeding stock. State your wants to G. R. Holston, Custer, or to the Dept. at Edmonton.

People are warned about being very careful with fires, matches, etc., also those who smoke. Everything is as dry as tinder and it will take but very little to kindle a fire that might result in a serious loss. Clean up all hay, straw and old paper that is blowing around your premises. An ounce of prevention is a heap.

How about the completion of the sidewalk on the west side of Main St? It is about time that work was finished to the corner.

A large potash field has been discovered, about 10 miles south of Czar, Alta. This deposit has been tested and it is now being piped and will be pumped to the railway, where an evaporator will be installed.

The Edmonton Bulletin, of July 8th, has a 3 page write-up with pictures, of the Stampede. Under a heading "Music for the Riders" it says: Monitor brass band, in their nifty uniforms, enlivened the proceedings and provided appropriate music for the maneuvers of the cowboys on parade. With a few days' rehearsal together this band and the bunch of cowboys could produce a wonderful musical ride.

Evidence Crops Up Every Day

THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ALWAYS HELP KIDNEY DISEASE

Quebec Man Who Suffered From a Rurdown System and Kidney Disease Finds Quick Relief.

Miguasha Point, Que. (Special).—More evidence crops up in this vicinity every day to prove that for rundown people there is no remedy to equal Dodd's Kidney Pills. Among the many who have come forward with statements is Mr. Paul Landry, a well-known resident, whose testimony can easily be corroborated.

"It is with great pleasure that I write to tell you your Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine that I have ever taken," Mr. Landry states. "When I commenced to take them there was not much hope for me. After taking four boxes I felt like myself again. I advise all persons who suffer from kidney disease to take Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are popular all over this country, because they not only cure the pains and aches of the different diseases springing from disordered kidneys, but also give new life and energy all over the body. They do this naturally. They cure the kidneys. Cured kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood, and the pure blood carries nutrient instead of poison to all the nerves and muscles. You have never heard of a person Dodd's Kidney Pills harmed. You hear of thousands who have benefited by them.

Shortage in Heavy Horses

Horse buyers have been scouring the country the past few weeks in search of good heavy horses. One buyer told the writer of a trip he made through three counties in Ontario and was unable to buy a single draft horse. They are not in the country. A big lumberman, who has regions of Canada. Last year, in the fall, has decided to hold his horse supply so as to make sure of having horses for next winter's operations. If heavy horses are scarce today they will be much scarcer a year or two from now. Farmers, therefore, should breed all suitable draft mares.—Canadian Farm.

Controlling Fires On Settlers' Clearings

Admirable Working of Permit System Wherever It Has Been Applied

The permit system of regulating settlers' clearing fires is now in effect throughout nearly all the forest regions of Canada. Last year, legislation to bring it into force was adopted in Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. This year, the new Fire Act in New Brunswick makes the plan effective throughout that province. In Nova Scotia, Quebec, and British Columbia, the system has been in effect for years. Alberta is now the only forest province without it.

Wherever the setting out of settlers' clearing fires has been regulated under the permit system, with an adequate staff for its enforcement, it has worked wonders in reducing the forest fire losses, with no real setback to agricultural development.

The disposal of logging slash by fire, under control, is a problem closely related to that of slash resulting from settlers' clearing operations. In various parts of Canada, the safe disposal of logging slash is receiving increased attention, due to the rapidly increasing stumpage value of timber and to the realization that our forest resources are by no means inexhaustible.—C.L., in Conservation.

It never fails. Good druggists everywhere have sold it for years.

The War and the Child

Killed by a Flying Fragment From a Stray German Shell

Here is just one small war story of a child that will stick in the memory of any who read it. A lively little French boy was busy helping his grandfather in the cottage garden when a stray German shell landed behind the fighting front. They were great pals—one of those intimate companionships of childhood and age. A church army travelling van, an "old bun shop" came to a halt outside the garden gate.

With his legs astraddle, and his grubby hands on his hips the boy smiled a welcome at the driver—and so died smiling, being killed at that moment by a flying fragment from a stray German shell. The church army worker picked up the small, broken body from the flower patch into which it had been flung. But the boy was dead; and he could find no words and no touch, to stay the sobbing of the old man by his side, whose work-worn fumbling hands sought pitifully for some sign of the joyful life that was gone.

Strength of Merchants Bank is Set Forth in Report

Twenty Millions are Added to Assets and Current Loans

An increase in total assets amounting to almost twenty million dollars was the outstanding feature of the very gratifying report submitted at the annual meeting of the Merchants Bank of Canada on the fifth of June. This increase, which brings the assets of the Bank up to the notable figure of $140,937,544, was produced by an all-round increase in all branches of the Bank's liabilities to the public, note, circulation advanced nearly three millions, and non-interest deposits advanced seven and three-quarter millions, and interest-bearing deposits eleven millions, while balances due to banks and correspondents abroad were the only item to show a decrease. The general expansion of the Bank's capital public liabilities amounted to an exceptional rate of 16 2/3 per cent. for the year. Deposits grew at the rate of over 21 per cent.

Another important feature of the report comes in the extent to which the Bank was successful in enlarging its current loans and discounts in Canada. Thirteen and a half million dollars approximately was added to this class of assets in the twelve months ending April 30, 1918, as compared with the annual meeting it was made clear that this expansion was in the main a direct result of the increased valuation of the commercial assets on which such loans are based. The assets have been rigorously scrutinized, and the sum of $400,000 was appropriated out of profits for a contingent fund for the making good of any depreciation.

In spite of the expansion in current loans, the proportion of liquid assets to total assets is still high enough for the most conservative requirements. The cash and readily realizable assets now total $57,667,481 against public liabilities amounting to $126,322,671, or in the proportion of 45.6 per cent. About 34 millions of these liquid assets is in the form of bank balances and call loans, and the remainder consists largely of government securities of the Dominion, the Provinces and Great Britain. It will be seen that both by its assistance to the current trade and industry of the Dominion and by its support of the government finances of Canada and the allies, the Merchants Bank is performing important services towards the winning of the war.

Notwithstanding the greatly increased volume of assets, profits continue to be on a very moderate scale considering the real size of the shareholders' investment. The earnings for the year were $1,236,680, being 17.66 per cent. on the capital of $7,000,000. The real investment includes $7,000,000 of rest or reserve fund, to say nothing of the undistributed profit balance, and the actual rate of return is therefore less than 8.8 per cent. Not all of this is available for the shareholders, since, as already mentioned, an appropriation of $400,000 was made for contingencies, and war taxes and the officers' pension fund took between them another $50,000. After the payment of the 10 per cent. dividend there was left a balance of $1,681 to add to the balance carried forward. Since the 1917 report the total assets of the Merchants Bank have increased from $83,120,741 to $140,937,544, and this without any increase either in capital or stock or reserve fund. For the time being, owing to the large sums carried in liquid assets at low earning power, and also to the constant revaluation of securities, the profits are not proportionately enhanced, but it is evident that with the return of more normal conditions the expansion in business should be very beneficial to the shareholders.

New Members Adapting Themselves to Army Discipline

The difficulties experienced by new members of the British armies, especially the privates, in adapting themselves to army discipline, will one day, surely open up a field for a delightful collection of stories.

The tale of the irate British trade unionist who threatened "to strike" when certain supposed rights were infringed is well known, as is that of the new recruit who, meeting an officer and failing to salute him, gave as an excuse that, as the officer had severely reprimanded him the day before, he understood they were not "on speaking terms."

One of the latest concerns an Australian officer, a new arrival. "Don't you know," said he to an offending private, "you oughtn't to wear your hat here." "No," said the private, "nobody told me that."

"You came over with one of the late drafts, I suppose," said the officer.

"Oh, so," drawled the other, as a matter of course, indulging a nice irony, as he eyed the terribly new uniform of the subaltern. "I didn't wait for one of the late drafts. I came along with the first push."

Development of the West

Pronounced Progress in Permanent Farming in Areas Served by the C. N. R.

A remarkable increase during 1917 in handlings of live stock and of butter, cheese, eggs, dressed meat, and dressed poultry, over the years in Western Canada is indicated in a statement compiled by the freight department of the Canadian Northern Railway.

Any great increase in tonnage in these commodities, of course, could not be accomplished without pronounced progress in permanent farming in areas served by the C. N. R. in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. It is significant that the prairie provinces are becoming exporters of dairy products, where in recent years they were importers on a considerable scale.

During 1917, 11,363 cars of live stock were handled over the line of the Canadian Northern Railway system as compared with 7,245 during 1916. This is an increase of 4,118 cars or 57 per cent.

Of cattle in 1917, there were handled 5,421 cars as compared with 2,900 in 1916. Of hogs 2,274 cars, as compared with 1,768 in 1916. Of sheep 261 cars in 1917 as against 74 in 1916; and mixed stock 3,407 in 1917 as compared with 2,501 in 1916. The percentage of increase in cattle was 87 per cent; of sheep, 243 per cent; hogs, 29 per cent; and mixed 36 per cent.

During 1917 the produce shipped from stations on the Canadian Northern western line reached a total of 24,618,000 pounds as compared with 21,436,000 pounds in 1916, an increase of 3,182,000 pounds or 15 per cent.

The cheese shipped totaled 1,072,000 pounds as compared with 780,000 in 1916, an increase of 292,000 pounds. Eggs, in 1917, amounted to 5,980,000 pounds as compared with 5,682,000 in 1916, an increase of 298,000 pounds. Dressed meats handled over the line amounted to 9,108,000 pounds in 1917, as against 7,866,000 in 1916, an increase of 1,242,000. Dressed poultry shipments totalled 312,000 pounds during 1917 as compared with 282,000 in 1916. The percentage of increase for butter handled was 19 per cent; cheese 37 per cent; eggs 5 per cent; dressed meat 16 per cent; and dressed poultry 11 per cent.

Clean Stomach, Clear Mind.—The stomach is the workshop of the vital functions and when it gets out of order the whole system clogs in sympathy. The spirits flag, the mind droops and work becomes impossible. The first care should be to restore healthful action of the stomach and the best preparation for that purpose is Farnell's Vegetable Pills. General use for years won them a leading place in medicine. A trial will attest their value.

A Gentleman Unafraid.—The "polish" is one-third heroism, one-third sense of duty, and one-third modesty. A stretcher-bearer blew up a bridge himself and delayed the German advance. The general decided to award him the Military Medal. "Summon the man at once, and I will decorate him here," said the general. Ordinarily went to look for the stretcher-bearer but no trace of him could be found. Nobody even knew his name. He was merely a French soldier!—Westminster Gazette.

PAIN? NOT A BIT! LIFT YOUR CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

No hump! Apply few drops then just lift them away with fingers.

This new drug is an ether compound discovered by a Cincinnati chemist. It is called freezone, and can now be obtained in tiny bottles, as here shown, at very little cost from any drug store. Just ask for freezone. Apply a drop or two directly upon a tender corn or callus and instantly the soreness disappears. Shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off, root and all, with the fingers.

Not a twinge of pain, soreness or irritation; not even the slightest smarting, either when applying freezone or afterwards.

This drug doesn't rot up the corn or callus, but shrivels them so they loosen and come right off. It is no hump! It is like a little warm. For a few cents you can get rid of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses from bottom of your feet. It never disappoints and never burns, bites or irritates. If your druggist hasn't any freezone yet, tell him to get a little bottle for you from his wholesale house.

Dandelions as Food

Cornell University has published a card "Dandelions as Food," which explains how some benefit may be obtained from this yellow flowering plant which prevents the lawn from being beautiful. It is known that iron is necessary to maintain the body in perfect health, and that fresh vegetable and especially greens or spinach supply a large proportion. Dandelion greens are valuable in this respect also and may be used to supplement the starchy foods and give variety to the menu.

You cannot see the shell-torn Flanders fields nor view with pity devastated France, you cannot travel in the submarine-infested ocean, nor can you fly up amongst the stormy clouds and view the war-weary world. You must live out your life in the peaceful last best West. Your boys and brothers and friends are laying down their lives, sacrificing all that makes life worth living that you may live in peace and plenty, that the Hun may not violate your hearth and home, these brave lads are paying the supreme price. We have a duty too, a clear plain call, sign up with the Red Cross and give to the limit of your ability.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. John Bothers on attaining the consummation of love's golden dream. When they wake up may they find it is a dream that comes true every day of their lives. The whole community unites in good wishes on this happy occasion and trust the young couple may enjoy a life of health, happiness and prosperity. They are both deservedly popular in town and we rejoice to know that altho the course of true love never does run smooth in this case Cupid has been kind and steered their barque right into that strange sea, of matrimony, which after all is the only natural and the best way of floating down the tide of time. May the only squalls they have be little ones.

The town has a score to settle with the happy couple who got married at Compeer, on Wednesday, by Rev. Brett, in the presence of friends and relatives of the two families. The bride looked charming in a pretty blue costume with silk waist and white hat. We were all disappointed the wedding was not in Bideford, as special preparations had been made to give the groom the royal bumps and the bride a shower of rice. A Bidefordite got in a 50 lb sack in readiness for the send-off, not to mention the old shoes. But Johnnie exceeded the speed limit, in his car, and passed the town up. Here's how to Mr. and Mrs. John, and let 'em look out when Johnnie comes marching home.

A business meeting took place at the home of Mrs. P. Robinson, on Thursday, to discuss the dissolution of the W.I. in favor of Red Cross work. Opinion was divided as to the desirability of such procedure, and it was finally decided to keep the Institute going by holding the meetings quarterly, as it was felt necessary to be in close touch with all the educational and social advantages the Institute offers. The ladies decided to devote all their energies to Red Cross work.

Not only in the old lands are loyal womanly hearts and heads planning to do their best bit for victory's sake, but right here the women assemble themselves together to study war's new problems. The Bideford W. I. are holding a cooking demonstration of war cookery on Sat. July 20th and Mon. the 22nd. War bread with substitutes will be shown.

WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED

Foster now regretted that he had helped the poachers, although he thought he had made friends who would not betray him and might be useful. He had met Border Scots in Ontario, and knew something about their character. They were marked by a stern independence they had inherited from the moose-hooper ancestors and he thought Pete was a typical specimen of the virile race. The man met him at one broken dyke, and leaving the road they turned east up the side of a sparkling burn.

The narrow strip of level ground was wet and covered with moss in which their feet sank, but the hill-side was too steep to climb. They ran up a slope of grey-white grass, to the ragged summit where the peat was gashed and torn. Here and there a stunted thorn tree grew in a hollow, and the glen was savagely desolate, and Foster, glancing at his companion, thought he understood why the men who were a living threat to the Scottish square against the onslaught of England's finest cavalry, were bred in these wide, and had left their descendants marked by their downy stubbornness. Pete's hair was turning grey and his brown face was deeply lined, but he crossed the quaking moss with a young lad's stride, and Foster thought his mouth could set hard as granite in spite of his twinkling smile. He was a man who would forget neither a favor nor an injury, and Foster was glad to feel that he was on his side.

At the head of the glen they climbed a long grassy slope and came to a tableland where the peat was torn into great black rifts and piled in hummocks. This was apparently Nature's work, but Foster could not see how the storms that burst upon the hills could have worked such havoc. Crossing the rugged waste to a distant cairn, they sat down upon the stones, and Pete filled his pipe from Foster's pouch.

"Ye'll had east until ye find a burn that will lead ye down to the road; then as ye cross the breast o' a fell ye'll see the rock o' Hawick," he said and added after a pause: "Maybe ye'll no be stopping in the town."

"I'll stay the night. After that, I think I'll take the hills again. I'm going south towards Liddesdale, but I expect that's out of your beat," Pete smiled. "There's my main to be done in my regular line this side o' Hawick. Buccleugh looks after his hares and paltrigra weel, and his marches rin wide across the country from Teviot to Liddel. But I ha' friends a' the way to the North Tyne, and there's no' many sheep sales I do not attend. If ye're wanting it, I could show ye a few directions that might help ye on the road."

Foster thanked him and listened carefully. It looked as if the poachers, who seemed to work now and then as honest drovers, knew each other well and combined for mutual protection. It might be useful to be made an honorary member of the gang.

"Feel," his companion concluded, "if ye stop at Innis ye told ye o', ye'll find folks who can hand a quiet tongue, and if ye see any reason for it, ye can say ye're a friend o' mine."

Foster rather diffidently offered him some money, but was not surprised when the man refused the gift. Indeed, he felt that it would have jarred him had Pete taken it. The latter gave him his hand with a smile and turned back to the glen while Foster pushed on over across the heath. He reflected with some amusement that Pete probably thought him a fugitive from the law.

After a time he stopped to look about. His view commanded a horizon of two or three miles, for he seemed to be near the centre of the tableland. Its surface was broken by the hummocks and hollows of the peat, and tufts of white wild cotton relieved the blackness of the gashes in the peat. Sheep fed in the distance, and he heard the harsh cry of a grouse that skimmed the heath. The skyline was clear and by and by two sharp but distant figures cut against it.

Foster's first impulse was to drop into the ling, but he did not. If the men were following him, it would take them half an hour to reach the spot he occupied and, if necessary, the roughness of the ground would enable him to reach the edge of the moor without their seeing which way he went. Besides, since he would be visible as long as he stood up, he could find out whether they were looking for him or not. They came nearer and then vanished, and he sat down and speculated about his line of retreat. Their disappearance was suspicious, and although he thought he could baffle the rural police, it would be different if he had gamekeepers to deal with.

By and by the men reappeared, but as they did not seem anxious to cover their movements, he felt relieved. It was possible that they had come to mend a fence or look for some sheep. For all that, he was not sure, and he looked for hollows where he would have a background for his figure as he resumed his march. He saw no more of the men and by and by came to a burn, which he followed to lower ground, where he found the road Pete had told him about.

It led him up and down hill, and now and then the track was faint, while when he crossed the last ridge the light was fading. Motionless grey clouds stretched across the sky, which glimmered with pale saffron in the west. Roused hills, stained a deep blue, and against the light came a trail of gauzy vapor hung about a distant hollow. Since there was no mist on the moors, he knew it was the smoke of Hawick mills.

As he went down, stone dykes began to straggle up the hill. The paths they enclosed were rushy and dotted with white, but they got smoother and presently he came to stubble and belts of plowing. Then he turned into a good road and rows of lights that got gradually brighter in the valley ahead. It had been dark some time when he entered the dark, and the damp air was filled with this smoky haze. Factory windows glimmered in the haze and tall chimneys loomed above the town. Great efforts were being made to keep the town as pleasantly but strangely on his ears after the silence of the moors.

Reaching a hotel that looked comfortable, he went in, ordered dinner, and provisionally booked a room, though he did not register and explained that he could not tell yet if he would stay all night. The leaving his knapsack, he went into the street and stopped by a bridge where three roads met. A guide post indicated that one led to Selkirk, and the map had shown Foster that this was the way to Peebles and Yarrow. Another ran up the waterside to Langholm and the south.

Foster lit a cigarette and drawing his gloved hand into the sleeve of his mackintosh, leaned against the side of the bridge and watched the Selkirk road. It was not cold and the street was well lighted by the windows of the shops. Briskly moving people streamed across the bridge, as if the factory hands were going home from work, but nobody seemed interested in Foster and the policeman who stood by the guidepost paid him no attention. He thought about going back to the hotel when a car, travelling rather fast, came down the road and pulled up close by.

Foster leaned quietly against the bridge and did not turn his head, but saw Daly sitting beside the driver; the half-dried mud that was thickly crusted about the car indicated a long journey. An abrupt movement might be dangerous, although he did not think Daly expected to find him or Featherstone calmly lounging about the street. The latter beckoned the policeman and Foster heard him ask if one crossed the bridge for Langholm.

Sufficient Sugar for Canning

Housekeepers who are anxious about their preserves for next winter may take comfort. The food board announces that there will be sufficient sugar in the country for the preserving and canning season and that the maximum fruit and vegetable crops that are produced in this country will be taken care of, so far as the sugar supply is concerned. To make sure of this, however, strict conservation will be necessary in the meantime.

Increased Garden Acreage

Mrs. F. Abraham, honorary chairman of the vacant lot and home garden section of the Canada food board, estimates an increased garden acreage of at least 20% over that of last year. Great efforts will have to be made to can, dry and store the surplus crop.

Great Britain's Part

Immense Efforts Put Out in Many Directions

The many-sidedness of Great Britain's contribution to the war might well be kept more than it is before the eyes of the world. Many people, for instance, realize that Great Britain is clothing American troops in France, and providing nearly all their armament except artillery.

How many people realize that down to January 1, 1917, Great Britain had advanced not less than £1,186,000,000 to her allies and £175,000,000 to her dominions; that she transports a daily average of over 7,000 personnel, and more than 30,000 tons of military supplies to France; that to the end of August, 1917, her navy and mercantile marine had transported and protected across the sea some 13,000,000 of personnel with the loss of only 3,500 all together?

The scale of this navy's work is particularly a far too little appreciated. Its burdens extend much beyond the 420,000 who now man our ships. For instance, the royal dockyards since the beginning of the war have repaired 31,470 war vessels, exclusive of the great amount of repair work done on allied ships.

These branches of British war effort represent a strain for which there is practically no German equivalent, and are too often left out of account in comparing the different branches of activity, which affect Great Britain and Germany alike, such as the provision of man-power for the army, the supply of munitions or the manufacture of aircraft. —From the London Daily Chronicle.
